

Dear XXX,

My name is XXXX and I am a fourth year student at the Hogeschool Utrecht, The Netherlands, studying for a Bachelor of Business Administration degree, majoring in International Business and Management. I would like to apply for the internship in Nike for the CO CoE intern position as from the February 2012 I need to do 6 months internship in an international company. During this internship I have to write a thesis which can be based on an issue that your company wants to solve, investigate into or a project that your company wants to develop. Based on the description of the internship the process improvement project can be a perfect base for writing a thesis.

As can be seen from my CV I have rich international experience. By now I have studied in 4 countries with very different cultures: Russia, Finland, Netherlands and France. Those experiences taught me how to adapt to different cultures and how to profit from those differences.

I was always interested in supply chain management. Working with systems, different frameworks, looking for the bottle necks and weak chain links, optimizing processes till they are perfect, synchronizing the whole supply chain, looking at the big picture in terms of costs and effectiveness are the tasks I would like to be involved with during my work. The opportunity of process improvement proposal is really great and it will give me a lot of freedom in my research. It will also allow me to see the big picture of Nike's supply chain and provide me with an in-depth knowledge of various specific processes. Besides having an internship in such a big, truly global multinational company would be a great experience for me.

I have a very high analytical skills, I am very good in collecting, organizing and analyzing information: during my previous internship in Skyline Diagnostics I was involved in many marketing researches for Skyline and I made a project concerning entering a new market. Also during my studies I wrote and defended two theses. Moreover I am very responsible and hard working. In addition, please consider that I speak three languages fluently: Russian, English and Dutch.

I hope you consider my application favorably and I look forward to your reply.

Best regards,
